

Harness your intelligence. Deliver with conviction.

In today's competitive insurance market, it's not enough to maintain status quo. Insurance companies must better understand their performance, the markets in which they operate, and how to position themselves going forward. Our tools, tailored specifically for the insurance market, arm you with the information you need to seize new opportunities and act with confidence.

Better your business with every click

Look to S&P Global Market Intelligence as your go-to source for your insurance company's internal and external data. Our solution provides faster, more reliable ways to evaluate opportunities, risk, and performance.

What you need to know, now

Get around-the-clock coverage of breaking news in the Property and Casualty (P&C), life and health, and managed care markets. Access scrolling news headlines, exclusive feature columns and blogs, newsletters, and an extensive news archive - all written by industry journalists.

Uncover critical information, faster

Make smarter business decisions with fundamental data, underwriting analysis, solvency, embedded value, and distribution channel information. Quickly compare insurance companies globally with data that's extensively vetted and standardized, and eliminate time-consuming manual data collection.

Discover tools as smart as you are

We've integrated rate and product filings within our suite of analytical tools to improve your product development and competitive intelligence. Conduct smarter searches with deeper insights using our comprehensive research library for rate, rule, and form filings.

Streamline your business intelligence

Insurance companies care about details, but these details aren't always accessible or complete. We provide the tools you can use to create an integrated view of your company's internal data and performance drivers, allowing you to achieve internal accountability and have greater transparency into your operations.

We help you work smarter

Make the complex simple. We state things clearly and place them within their global context. Our tools and data provide the vital details you need to analyze the global insurance market.

Access in-depth assessments on insurance markets worldwide

We collect and aggregate data from global regulators and industry associations, so you don't have to. Assess macroeconomic data and forecasts, sovereign and country risk ratings, and sector aggregate data. Stay focused with information on country-specific regulations affecting the industry, M&A, and foreign investments. Strengthen your peer analysis, strategic research, and business development, and evaluate the viability of entry into new markets.

Explore specialist markets

Delve into the structure and financial performance of current active Lloyd's Syndicates, including standardized segmental analysis and comprehensive income statement and balance sheet templates, to understand market conditions and build stronger underwriting portfolios.

Integrate your investor relations program

Today's investors expect news, financials and general information in real time. Our solutions for investor relations provide IR professionals the market insight they need to monitor analyst sentiment, track shareholders, and benchmark against industry peers.

Enhance underwriting and actuarial practices

Gain an advantage by using our customized Excel models to track broker submissions. Built on your criteria, forecast the likelihood of a claim being filed, the probability of default, and better assess the true financial health of your clients. We capture key transactions such as M&A, ownership changes, the latest Wall Street analysis, key developments, and hidden opportunities within the public and private company sectors.
